2.1 LOCATION

U.T. of Dadra & Nagar Haveli and Daman & Diu comprises three Districts namely Dadra & Nagar Haveli, Daman and Diu

Dadra and Nagar Haveli District is situated at the western coast in the foothills of Western Ghats. Daman & Diu Districts are situated on western coast of India at a distance of about 700 kms. Daman is the Head Quarter of this U.T.

Dadra and Nagar Haveli is bounded by Valsad district of Gujarat in the North- West and East, and Thane district of Maharashtra in the South and South East. It is composed of two enclaves: Dadra and Nagar Haveli. While Nagar Haveli located between Maharashtra and Gujarat, Dadra is an enclave which is a few kilometres north of Nagar Haveli in Gujarat. The nearest railway stations are Vapi and Bhilad situated in Gujarat is about 18 Kms. and 12 kms. respectively from Silvassa. The UT of D.N.H. is connected with National Highway No.48.

But important trains are linked with Veraval which is 90 kms from Diu. A portion of Diu District is on main land which is named as Ghoghla. A small part of Diu known as Simbor is situated in Gujarat at a distance of 25 kms from Diu.

2.2 HISTORY

Dadra and Nagar Haveli and Daman and Diu (DNHDD) is a Union Territory in western India created through the merger of the former Union Territories of “Dadra and Nagar Haveli” and “Daman and Diu”. Plans for the proposed merger were announced by the Government of India in July 2019 and the necessary legislation was passed in the Parliament of India in December 2019 and came into effect on 26 January 2020. The Territory is made up of four separate geographical entities Dadra, Nagar Haveli, Daman and Diu. All four areas were part of Portuguese India and came under Indian administration in the mid-20th century.

Brief history of Dadra & Nagar Haveli and Daman & Diu Districts are furnished below as per District Census Hand Book of Census of India, 1981.

2.2.1 DADRA AND NAGAR HAVELI DISTRICT:

In order to keep the English at bay and to enlist their support against the Mughals, the Marathas made friends with the Portuguese and signed a treaty in 1779. According to this historic treaty of friendship, the Maratha-Peshwa agreed that the Portuguese will be allowed to collect revenue from Dadra and Nagar Haveli which consisted of 72 villages, then known as parganas in compensation for their loss of a warship called " Santana " which had earlier been captured by the Marathas but not surrendered to the Portuguese inspite of their many entreaties. These territories were earlier ruled by the Koli chiefs who were defeated by the Hindu kings of "Jawhar" and "Ramnagar". The Marathas conquered and annexed these territories to their kingdom. Portuguese rule over the Union Territory lasted until August 2, 1954, and traces of it can still be found.

After liberation the Administration was carried out by local body known as Free Dadra and Nagar Haveli Administration till its merger with the Indian Union on 11th August, 1961. Consequently, the free Dadra and Nagar Haveli Administration was succeeded by formal statutory Administration headed by an Administrator (Governor).

In 1961, Dadra and Nagar Haveli became a part of India and since then, it has been administered as a Union Territory, with Silvassa as its' capital.

The Union Territory is dotted with ruins from its glorious past. One of Dadra and Nagar Haveli's major tourist attractions is in Silvassa - the Church of Our Lady of Piety (built in 1889 and still standing strong). The Bindrabin temple, also at Silvassa, is another famous tourist attraction.

2.2.2 DAMAN DISTRICT:

The District of Daman is known to have formed part of the country known as Lata which was one the seven divisions of the Aparant or Konkan Vishaya, between 2nd Century B.C. to 13th Century A.D. The Daman District is included in the intervening region and therefore must have formed part of the Mauryan empire at least at the time of Ashoka. After the Mauryan power was weakened, the district was under the rule of Satkarni I, the Satavahana ruler in the end of 2nd Century B.C. After that during the 1st Century A.D. the District of Daman seemed to have been ruled by Kshaharatas who were the provincial governors i.e. Kshatrapas under the Kushana emperors.

During A.D. 125, Satkarnidrove away the Kshaharatas and ruled the districts. But the Satavahanarule was short lived. The Kshaharatas of Ujjain re-conquered the district by about A.D 150 from the Satavahanaruler Satakarni and Daman District again passed under the rule of Kshaharatas of Ujjain till A.D. 249. After the Kshatrapas, the district was ruled by the Abhir Kings till A.D. 416.

After the rule of Abhir kings, the district was under the rule of Traikutakas during the 5th Century A.D. who were the feudatories of the Abhiras. By A.D. 500, the Traikutaka power seems to have been destroyed by the Vakataka king Harishena. The District then was under the power of the Kalachuris of Mahishmati King Krishnaraja and his successors till A.D. 609. King Mangales of Chalukyas of Badami routed out the last king Budharaja of Kalachuris by about A.D. 609. The Chalukyas of Badami ruled the district till A.D. 671 and their descendants known as Lata or NavasariChalukyas ruled from Navasarika, modern Navasari, on the bank of the river Purna to the north of Daman. They ruled independently as feudatories of the Badami Chalukyas of the Deccan. In the next eight centuries, Daman came under the control of a large number of Hindu kings and chieftains.

Mahmud Shah Begada, Sultan of Gujarat, seems to have conquered fort Parnera on the river Par and port of Daman and levied tribute from Jagatshah in 1465. Naranshah who succeeded Jagatshah ruled from A.D. 1470 to 1500 and Dharmshah II from 1500 to 1531.

Daman was acquired by the Portuguese from the Shah of Gujarat. They noticed the port of Daman for the first time in 1523. They attacked it several times and finally obtained it in 1559 by means of a treaty with the Shah. Thereafter, it was under the rule of Portuguese till its liberation in 1961.

2.2.3 DIU DISTRICT:

The documented history of the District of Diu begins with the Maurya rule (c.322-220 B.C.). Emperor Chandragupta Maurya had extended his supremacy over Saurashtra and had appointed Pushagupta as Governor of the province of Saurashtra with the Head-quarters in village Girnar near Junagadh. Yavanaraj Tushappa ruled over Saurashtras Governor of Emperor Ashoka (c.273-237 B.C.). Emperor Ashokahadsent Yavana Thero named Dhammarakhito as evangelist to the western sea board including Diu. His grandson Samprati (c.229-220 B.C.) seems to have ruled over Saurashtra from Ujjain. He propagated Jainism and erected many Jain Temples. The Jain traditions from Diu seems to belong to this period.

The District seems to be under the rule of Indo-Greek kings Eukratides (c.171-150 B.C.), Meanandar (c.115 to 90 B.C.) and Appollodotes II of the 1st Century B.C. No historical information is available for the period of 150 years from the 1st Century B.C. to about A.D. 50. During the A.D. 1st Century, the district seems to have been ruled by Kshaharatas who had established their rule over western part of India including Saurashtra. For more than the next thousand years, Diu formed part of the kingdoms of dynasties that ruled over the western India including Gujarat.

The last king of the Vaja dynasty ruler of Somnath Patan ruled over Diu in the first decade of the fifteenth century. Thereafter, Diu came under the control of the Muslims Sultans of Gujarat who seem to have ruled Diu for the next one and a half centuries.

Early in 1535, the Portuguese Governor De Cunha had led his expedition for the capture of the town in Diu, but was defeated by the Sultan. However, around that period, the Gujarat Sultan Bahadur Shah's kingdom was overwhelmed by Mughal invasion. Pressed by Mughal king Humayun on one side and the Portuguese at the gates of Diu, Bahadur Shah entered into a treaty with Nuno da Cunha on October 25, 1535 who agreed to assist Bahadur Shah against his enemy by land and sea. In turn he received permission to construct a fortress at Diu and a site was granted for this purpose in the harbour. After the Mughal danger was receded, the Shah of Gujarat realized his mistake in allowing the Portuguese to construct the fort. Finally Diu was conquered by the Portuguese in 1546 who ruled there till 1961.
