HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE SURYA KANT

Executive Chairman, NALSA

Judge, Supreme Court of India

Dear Readers,

It is with great joy that I present the April-June 2025 edition of the NALSA Quarterly Newsletter. This quarter has been a period of both reflection and renewal for the legal services movement, reminding us that true access to justice transcends courtrooms and must resonate within homes, schools and communities across the nation.

In Kohima, Nagaland, the State Mega Legal Services Camp extended not only legal support but also vital welfare and healthcare assistance to over 3,500 individuals. The initiative reaffirmed that institutions of legal aid are most impactful when they engage directly with people and address their needs at the grassroots.

The Western Regional Conference in Narmada District, Gujarat, convened to commemorate three decades of NALSA, became a moment to introspect upon our collective journey while charting the course ahead. The unveiling of three new initiatives: the NALSA JAGRITI Scheme 2025, the NALSA DAWN Scheme 2025 and the NALSA SAMVAD Scheme 2025; alongside the bilingual POSH Handbook and the commemorative volume NALSA@30, embodied our shared determination to meet emerging legal challenges with clarity and compassion. The launch of innovative digital platforms such as LESA, the migration of SLISA websites to the S3WaaS framework and NALSA Connect, a WhatsApp-based outreach channel, signified our step towards a forward-looking and inclusive legal aid ecosystem.

Innovation in outreach also found expression in the Nationwide Reel & Short Film Competition for law students, where the creativity of young voices demonstrated how legal awareness can be powerfully conveyed through the language of the digital age.

In the Andaman & Nicobar Islands, we confronted grave realities such as child marriage, child sexual abuse and the alarming rise of child suicides. The introduction of the NALSA ASHA (Awareness, Support, Help and Action) SOP 2025 - Towards Eliminating Child Marriage marks a significant stride in addressing these pressing issues with both sensitivity and urgency.

This edition encapsulates the dedication of legal services institutions nationwide- through awareness campaigns, prison initiatives, youth engagement and the successful conduct of the Second National Lok Adalat of 2025. I trust that the pages that follow will inspire renewed commitment to our enduring ideal: justice accessible to all.

Warm regards,
Surya Kant

Message from the Member Secretary, NALSA

Dear Readers,

It gives me great pride to present the April-June 2025 edition of NALSA's Quarterly Newsletter, which brings to the fore a tapestry of impactful legal aid initiatives from across the country. This edition captures not only the breadth of outreach programmes undertaken by Legal Services Institutions but also the profound human stories that reflect the heart of our mission - access to justice is not a privilege but a right for all.

The focus on institutional capacity-building, seen through mediation training programmes, orientation sessions on child and disability law and jail inspection visits, strengthens our service delivery systems. These efforts reflect the core functions of Legal Services Institutions which is spreading legal literacy, strengthening preventive legal aid and fostering early dispute resolution to reduce unnecessary litigation. Each effort, whether it be legal empowerment of transgender persons, rescue operations for child labourers or securing entitlements for persons with disabilities, adds a vital stitch in our collective fabric of justice.

Importantly, this quarter's newsletter highlights the voices of those we serve and the dedication of our para-legal volunteers, panel advocates and legal aid counsels who stand as the bedrock of our work. I also take this opportunity to recognize the vibrant contribution of our interns, whose enthusiasm and commitment re-energize our purpose.

As we continue this shared journey, may these stories inspire deeper engagement, stronger partnerships and an unwavering pursuit of equity. Let us carry forward the conviction that justice, when made accessible, transforms lives and let that conviction guide us in every initiative we undertake.

INTERNS AT NALSA

The NALSA Internship Programme invites the law students to be a part of a profound journey, where theory meets action and the law becomes a powerful force for ensuring legal aid and justice delivery for those who need it the most. During the April-June 2025 cohort, interns were granted the rare privilege of observing how NALSA facilitates access to free legal services for marginalized groups, such as women, children, prisoners, trafficking victims and individuals with disabilities, offering them a first-hand perspective of how the legal system intersects with social justice.

During the programme, interns engaged with and visited various legal service institutions, such as District Legal Services Authorities (DLSAs), Taluk Legal Services Committees (TILSCs), Legal Aid Clinics, Prisons, CAW Cells, Juvenile Justice Boards and Lok Adalats. During May, Hon'ble Mr. Justice Surya Kant, Executive Chairman of NALSA, interacted with the interns, shared insights on the role of law in promoting social justice and urged them to uphold empathy, service and integrity, inspiring them to approach their legal careers with responsibility.

Additionally, building on these diverse institutional experiences, in June, a special 40-hour Mediation Training was offered to the interns. This intensive training not only broadened their understanding of mediation as a critical tool in conflict resolution but also provided them with structured, hands-on experience that will be invaluable as they navigate complex legal challenges in their careers. The ability to mediate and resolve conflicts amicably will help the interns build a more compassionate, empathetic and socially responsive approach to legal practice, especially when working with marginalized communities.

The NALSA Internship Programme is not just an academic exercise, but a professional development opportunity, which nurtures a deep commitment to social justice, encouraging interns to become advocates for change. By the end of the programme, the interns develop a deeper understanding of India's legal system and gain the tools to effectively support vulnerable communities.
