About the Theme

“No Health without Mental Health”

Mental health for all is a global priority. Disability, whether physical or mental, can profoundly affect an individual's ability to perform daily life activities and full engagement with society. While physical disabilities have received attention in healthcare and social support systems, mental health disabilities often remain under-addressed. However, lack of awareness, the stigma surrounding mental illness and paucity of comprehensive rehabilitation services create barrier for individuals seeking help. Psychosocial rehabilitation plays a crucial role in supporting individuals with mental health disabilities by promoting recovery, empowering them to regain independence, fostering community integration which encourages holistic wellbeing and social participation. The 10th September is Suicide Prevention Day. This conference will serve as a platform to bring together mental health professionals, rehabilitation experts, researchers, policymakers, to discuss challenges, share best practices, and explore innovative solutions in the field of mental health rehabilitation.
