6. Analysis of the Provisions & Guidelines

6.1 The Hon'ble Delhi High Court in its judgment dated 02nd April 2025 in the matter of NPTI Vs. Mukesh Kumar held that interim recommendations—such as staying a transfer—issued by the Chief Commissioner for Persons with Disabilities (CCPD) under Section 75 read with Section 76 of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act, 2016 (RPwD Act), are not merely advisory but carry a statutory weight. Specifically, such as those directing an employer to defer an internal administrative decision, qualify as “interim recommendations”, which under Section 76 impose an obligation on the authority concerned to either act upon them or provide valid, written reasons for non-compliance to both the CCPD and the aggrieved person. The Court reaffirmed that while service-related administrative decisions, like transfers, generally fall within the employer's domain, they become subject to statutory oversight when they potentially infringe the rights of persons with disabilities, particularly rights of non-discrimination and reasonable accommodation under the RPwD Act. The Court in para 36 of its judgment held as under:

“36. For what we have discussed and analyzed above, we are of the considered opinion that the recommendations made by the Chief Commissioner in relation to the exercise undertaken by it under Section 75 (1) (a) & (b) of the 2016 Act will bind the authority concerned which shall take necessary remedial measures and corrective steps, however, such recommendation may not be acted upon or will not bind the authority concerned only and only in a situation such an authority has valid reasons for not accepting a recommendation which are required to be conveyed to the Chief Commissioner as also to the person aggrieved."

6.2 As rightly laid down in DoP&T O.M. dated 31.03.2014, the objective behind exempting from routine transfer or behind giving preference in transfer and posting is to provide an environment to divyang employee in which they can achieve the desired performance and where their services can be optimally utilised. A combined reading of all the guidelines further makes it clear that the government's approach to the issue of transfer is progressive and forward-looking.

6.3 The Intention of the RPwD Act, 2016 is reflected in above mentioned provisions of the Act, and the rules and instructions issued in pursuance thereof or aligned with the statute. These provisions make it clear that the legislature intended to provide a supporting environment regarding health, education, social and psychological support. Hence, these guidelines are binding on government establishments, unless they can show that a positive redressal of grievance is not feasible in view of an administrative constraint to be spelt out clearly. In other words, these instructions embody provisions enabling the authorities to provide for reasonable accommodation to an employee with disabilities or a caregiver. If the authority decides not to use this power vested in it in the face of such explicit statutory provisions and guidelines on the subject, then it is inescapable to clarify what prevents

7. Accordingly, the instant case is referred to the respondents for being entrusted to the Grievance Redressal Officer (GRO), who will take appropriate remedial measures. The Complaint shall be examined and disposed of with a speaking order of the Competent Authority within 30 days. While reviewing the matter, the GRO and the Competent Authority shall consider inter alia the legal framework on the subject as brought out in para 4 above, along with any other corresponding instructions applicable in this regard.

8. If the complainant is not satisfied with the resolution of her/his grievance, she/he will be at liberty to approach this Court or any other Court or tribunal of appropriate jurisdiction. The respondent is advised to submit an Action Taken Report one month from the date of issuance of this order.

9. Accordingly, the case is disposed of with the approval of the Chief Commissioner for Persons with Disabilities.

Yours faithfully,
