STATEMENTS OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Parliament of India established the State of Uttarakhand under the Uttar Pradesh Reorganization Act, 2000. Since its formation, two kinds of laws/ Acts applicable in the State of Uttarakhand for which the State has the Legislative competence to enact, amend, modify, repeal, or consolidate laws under the Constitution of India, 1950:

- i. Firstly, Acts/laws were absorbed from the State of Uttar Pradesh under Section 87 of the Reorganization Act.
- ii. Secondly, laws which the State of Uttarakhand enacted after its formation.

Under Section 87 of Uttar Pradesh Reorganization Act, 2000, all laws unless altered, repealed or amended will continue to be applicable under the State of Uttarakhand. A number of Acts/laws of the undivided state of Uttar Pradesh have been prevalent in the State of Uttarakhand along with the laws which the State has enacted since its formation.

It is understood that various Acts/laws, that are rendered useless, have been repealed by the Union of India and various States and various from time to time to reduce the number of Acts. Therefore, it is necessary to repeal certain Acts/Laws, related to various Department which has become irrelevant in the State of Uttarakhand.

Besides certain amendment Acts can also be repealed in view of the provisions contained in Section 6-A of the General Clauses Act, 1897 and Section 6-C of THE UTTAR PRADESH GENERAL CLAUSES ACT, 1904. Under these provisions, it is understood that repealing an Amending Act does not affect the portions of the statute that have amended the Principal/Parent Act. Therefore, repealing applicable Amendment Acts will not affect the amendments done to the Principal Act.

The proposed bill repeals multiple legislation in line with the above objectives.
