Fresh from the Bench

Cox and Kings Ltd v SAP India Pvt Ltd & Anr, 2023 INSC 1051

Group of Companies Doctrine

In its judgment dated 6 December 2023, a Constitution bench comprising the Chief Justice of India, Dr D Y Chandrachud, Justice Hrishikesh Roy, Justice P S Narasimha, Justice J B Pardiwala and Justice Manoj Misra, unanimously upheld the Group of Companies Doctrine (GOCD). The GOCD provides that an arbitration agreement may bind non-signatory affiliates if the circumstances demonstrate the mutual intention of the parties to bind both signatories and non-signatories. Emphasising the corporate separateness of the group companies, the Court held that the principle of alter ego or piercing the corporate veil cannot be the basis for the application of the GOCD. The Court pointed out that the definition of ‘parties’ under Section 2 (1) (h) r/w Section 7 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 includes both signatory and non-signatory parties. Further, the requirement of a written arbitration agreement under Section 7 cannot exclude the possibility of binding non-signatory parties to an arbitration agreement. The Court explained that the consent of non-signatories to be bound by an arbitration agreement could be inferred from their conduct. To determine the applicability of the GOCD, the Court held that the cumulative factors laid down in Oil and Natural Gas Corporation Ltd v Discovery Enterprises Pvt Ltd, 2022 INSC 483 must be considered.

M/s North Eastern Chemicals Industries (P) Ltd & Anr v M/s Ashok Paper Mill (Assam) Ltd & Anr, 2023 INSC 1059

Appeal in Absence of Prescribed Limitation Period

In its judgment dated 11 December 2023, a bench comprising Justice Abhay S Oka and Justice Sanjay Karol addressed the question of filing an appeal in the absence of a prescribed limitation period under a general or specific statute. The Court ruled that in the absence of a prescribed limitation period in a statute, an appeal must be filed within ‘reasonable time,’ which is to be determined by undertaking a holistic assessment of the facts and circumstances of each case. The Court observed that the party raising the plea of delay bears the burden of demonstrating how the delay itself would cause the party additional prejudice or loss as opposed to if the claim, that was the subject matter of dispute, was raised at an earlier point in time. Notably, the bench clarified that in the absence of a prescribed limitation period, a shorter delay in initiating litigation would not attract delay and latches.

In Re: Interplay Between Arbitration Agreements Under The Arbitration And Conciliation Act 1996 And The Indian Stamp Act 1899, 2023 INSC 1066

Enforceability of Unstamped Arbitration Agreements

On 13 December 2023, a bench comprising the Chief Justice of India, Dr D Y Chandrachud, Justice Sanjay Kishan Kaul, Justice Sanjiv Khanna, Justice B R Gavai, Justice Surya Kant, Justice J B Pardiwala, and Justice Manoj Misra unanimously held that arbitration clauses in unstamped or inadequately stamped agreements are enforceable. Through its judgment, the Court overruled its earlier holding in M/s N N Global Mercantile Pvt Ltd v M/s Indo Unique Flame Ltd & Ors, by which it had held the unenforceability of unstamped arbitration agreements. The 7 judge bench clarified the distinction between admissibility and enforceability, noting that although unstamped or inadequately stamped agreements are inadmissible in evidence under Section 35 of the Stamp Act, 1899, they are not void, void ab initio or unenforceable. The Court held that non-stamping or inadequate stamping is a curable defect. The bench reaffirmed the competence-competence doctrine, stating that objections related to stamping of the agreement fall under the arbitral tribunal's jurisdiction and cannot be raised under Sections 8 or 11 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 before a court.

Saumya Chaurasia v Directorate of Enforcement, 2023 INSC 1073

First Proviso to S 45 PMLA Not Mandatory

On 14 December 2023, a bench comprising Justice Aniruddha Bose and Justice Bela M Trivedi analysed the first proviso to Section 45 of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002. The proviso confers discretion to the special court in granting bail to an accused who is either a woman, under sixteen, or sick or infirm. The bench clarified that the use of the expression "may be" in the first proviso to Section 45 indicates discretionary rather than mandatory power, which is to be exercised judiciously based on the facts and circumstances of each case. In granting bail or refusing bail, factors like the alleged offence, the severity of punishment, the extent of involvement in the offence, and the nature of evidence must be considered. Additionally, while granting or refusing bail, the court is expected to express its prima facie opinion which demonstrates an application of mind, particularly in dealing with serious economic offences.

A Leap Toward Justice: A Special Feature on Digitisation in the Supreme Court

The Supreme Court seeks to harness technology to build a justice delivery system that is accessible to all, regardless of geographical, socio-economic and other constraints. The integration of technology into court processes has streamlined them, making them more resource-efficient, transparent and accessible. Some of the Court's initiatives have been discussed below:

Accelerated by COVID-19, virtual hearings have become an integral part of the Indian court process. Hybrid hearings offer both lawyers and litigants the flexibility of choosing between physical and virtual courtrooms and save time and resources. As of 31 December 2023, the Supreme Court has heard 6,20,581 cases through video conferencing. Paperless courtrooms are equipped with modern technologies including monitors, LED screens, and document cameras, which facilitate the real-time sharing of evidentiary materials.

The Advocate Appearance Portal, which records the appearance of advocates in the Record of Proceedings online, rather than on paper slips, has slashed paper waste, and contributed to the reduction of the Court's carbon footprint.

Number of appearances marked through online appearance slips from 1 January 2023 at the Supreme Court

The Supreme Court is committed to a paperless future, evident through its emphasis on the e-filing of cases. Upgraded software applications, including e-filing 2.0, operate round-the-clock, and allow for efficient electronic filing, the curing of defects, and quicker listing. The Integrated Court Management Information System (ICMIS), updated to streamline case management, scheduling, and document handling, has also reduced the reliance on paper. The Court plans to deploy Artificial Intelligence (AI) to identify filing defects and speed up the filing process in the future.

The Chief Justice of India, Dr D Y Chandrachud introduced a web-based RTI portal in November 2022, eliminating the need to submit applications physically in Court. This portal has processed 1,262 applications in 2023, enhancing accessibility and simplifying the process through online payment gateways.

Through SuSwagatam, a citizen-centric, web-based and mobile-friendly app, visitors to the Supreme Court may now request an e-pass to enter the Court premises rather than waiting in long and tedious queues. FASTER 2.0 ensures that judicial orders of release are immediately transferred to jail authorities and District and High Courts electronically to secure the swift release of undertrials, accused and convicts.

In 2022, the Court started live-streaming proceedings of Constitution benches. AI was employed to transcribe oral arguments in courtrooms. In an effort to enhance transparency and reduce delays, the Court onboarded its data onto the National Judicial Data Grid (NJDG), a centralised online database that provides information about case pendency, in September 2023.

e-SCR, an online repository of reported judgments, provides free access to over 36,209 of the Supreme Court's reported judgments from 1950 to the present day. It also features translations of judgments into 17 regional languages, including Garo, Hindi, Konkani, Odia, and Tamil. e-Sewa Kendras enhance access to justice by facilitating litigants' access to case information including copies of judgments and orders.

The Supreme Court of India's embrace of technology signals an era of rapid development for the nation's judiciary. From hybrid hearings to paperless processes and online repositories, each of its initiatives represents a stride toward a more inclusive, transparent, and responsive justice delivery system.

“Technology is a Force Multiplier:” Discussing Digitisation with Mr H S Jaggi

H S Jaggi Registrar (Technology) at his desk

Supreme Court Chronicle met with Mr H S Jaggi, Registrar (Technology) to discuss the digitisation drive of the Supreme Court. Mr Jaggi helms the Court’s Computer Cell, and likens the coordination of the Court’s technological initiatives to manning an aircraft with multiple screens. Mr Jaggi’s understanding of case management dates back to his time in the Delhi Higher Judicial Service. Back then, he was the Service’s first differently-abled appointee. Mr Jaggi shares that being given an opportunity to spearhead crucial projects is a testament to a judiciary that not only talks about embracing diversity, but actively walks the talk. Throughout our conversation, his pragmatism, determination, and enthusiasm shine through. He recognises the need to balance the technological initiatives he coordinates so closely with a humanity that should undergird any judicial institution.

To establish a robust and efficient working system, Mr Jaggi stresses the importance of investing in technology. “You spend money on technology, money makes the mare go.” He discusses the “redundancy model,” by which a single backup can kick in for the collapse of multiple systems. So if digital servers are arranged in an x model— if one goes bad, another takes over. Acknowledging the rapid pace of change in our world, he reiterates the Supreme Court’s commitment to keeping abreast with the latest technologies.

Transitions are never easy though. “Change is always very messy in the beginning, hard in the middle, and beautiful in the end,” he admits. A great challenge for his team in 2020 was the switch to video conferencing (VC) necessitated by COVID-19. The creation and maintenance of a stable VC infrastructure was the priority. Mr Jaggi shares that technologies like video conferencing hold great power in bolstering the right to access justice. But with great power comes great responsibility. “If you fail to mute, timely, unmute, or not help the advocates and parties with the camera, their 10 seconds to start with are gone and they may lose out on their last resort in the apex court.”

For Mr Jaggi, a common platform for information flow will facilitate the Court's goal of ensuring access to justice. Currently, the three tiers of the Indian judiciary use separate information management software. The e-Committee has facilitated the adoption of a common software technology across District Courts, creating a unified Case Information System (CIS). Mr Jaggi shares that harmonising the software of all three tiers of the judiciary will ensure that when a case progresses through each of the tiers, information about it remains standardised and coherent. This approach will bring efficiency to information management and address the challenges of disparate platforms and isolated data islands.

Mr Jaggi is grateful for the encouragement extended by Judges and their role in fostering a conducive environment for a technologically-enabled court. Their enthusiasm for employing technological tools advances the Computer Cell's mission. Mr Jaggi notes the vital role played by the youth in ushering in these changes. "The new generation is coming in very technologically handy, and I call them 'instant' because we all love instant things, we consume instant coffee, instant noodles, instant content." For Mr Jaggi, an important part of change is having everyone on board to facilitate it. He envisions developing institutional goals while ensuring accessibility and inclusivity. "Take everyone along, no person is left behind."

Mr Jaggi is proud of the work being done at the Supreme Court. His eyes glisten when he shares that the Court's use of AI for transcription was recognised in UNESCO's "Global Toolkit on AI and the Rule of Law for the Judiciary." A host of new technological initiatives is in store. Among them are the establishment of an independent data centre that leverages both public and private cloud services, cutting-edge live-streaming solutions, a tenfold boost in internet speed, and a new Supreme Court website that offers both English and Hindi options, in recognition of the needs of a diverse audience. These initiatives signify the Court's commitment to embracing a future that upholds principles of justice, inclusivity and transparency while leveraging technology for efficiency and progress.

The Supreme Court Judges’ Library: “Bringing Humans and Technology Together”

The Supreme Court Judges’ Library is a vast network of libraries. It includes the main Judges’ Library, 17 Bench Libraries, 34 Residential Libraries for Judges, and a Staff Library for the Registry’s reference. The Judges’ Library in the Additional Building Complex of the Supreme Court is spread over three storeys of the A block. It houses 3,75,000 documents including books, journals, commission reports, bare acts, Central and State Gazettes, Parliamentary Debates, and reference books.

Unlike other Court departments, the Library’s operational hours extend beyond the typical 10 am to 5 pm. Some members of the professional Library staff start working from their homes as early as 5:30 am, to collate important news clippings that are circulated to the offices of Judges all 365 days of the year. Under the leadership of Dr Uma Narayan, Registrar, Judges’ Library, the staff ensures that the Library runs for 360 days a year except for three national holidays, Holi and Diwali.

“Our library is not just shelves of books as many believe,” says Dr Narayan. “It serves as a nexus bringing humans and technology together. We are the crucial stakeholders in the smooth functioning of everyday court proceedings. The digital library page that we have created has the required information in a digitised form which earlier used to be in physical copy. From bare acts, rules regulations, books and commentaries to the e-SCR, LexisNexis, EBC Reader, SCC Online, WestLaw etc, we have trained the Junior Court Assistants (JCAs) in Courts to use these facilities so that they can find whatever is required by the Judge in real-time during proceedings,” she shares.

On 3 July 2023, Courtroom Nos 1 to 3 became paperless. This radical transformation heralded an era of digital courts that promises to reshape justice delivery. From requisitions to document access, everyday court processes have undergone a high-tech makeover. But like any transition, the shift was not without its challenges.

Traditionally, lawyers would requisition critical case references like books, bare acts, and rules, by indicating courtroom numbers and item details on paper slips. The onset of the COVID-19 pandemic altered this practice, necessitating requisitions via a designated email address. After the Court’s move toward digitisation, email requisitions became mandatory. Despite this, explains Mr Brij Bhooshan Khare, Librarian at the Information Management Section, many lawyers continue to submit last-minute requests, which proves challenging for the Court’s library staff. Mr Vijay Kumar, a Court Management Librarian with 23 years of experience, shares that despite a designated email address for requisitions, advocates call the Library directly for urgent requests.

A two-way communication module crafted by the Computer Cell organises requisition requests from Courtroom Nos 1, 2 and 3. It mandates that JCAs be present in each courtroom to relay requisitions received in court to the Library. However high-paced proceedings often hinder the JCAs’ ability to fill out requisition forms. To address this, a Telegram channel facilitates quick coordination between JCAs and internal Library staff. Although this adds to the responsibilities of the staff, it allows for the swift processing of last-minute requisition images sent by the JCAs, ensures the delivery of digital versions of reference materials and facilitates Judges’ instant access to necessary resources.

Requisition requests received on the internal portal of the Library from Courtroom Nos 1, 2, and 3

Although courtrooms that are yet to be digitised do store frequently accessed materials, the need for specific acts, rules, regulations, and commentaries not available in them, arises sporadically. The Library ensures the presence of a JCA and Restorer (Library) in such courtrooms to ensure preparedness in case of anticipated requisitions. Diligent professional staff swiftly retrieve documents from the Judges' Library to fulfil last-minute requests.

The Library staff emphasises that while the initial stages of digitisation might appear laborious, the eventual relief and assistance it offers is truly rewarding. It is just a matter of time before all courtrooms seamlessly transition into a fully digitised, paperless environment, significantly reducing reliance on physical documents. Currently, the Library is scanning and digitising crucial documents— books, references, legislations, acts, rules, and more— in order to integrate them into its digital platform. This proactive step aims to gradually diminish dependence on physical materials.

Beyond a mere repository of books, the Supreme Court Library functions as a dynamic system shaping past, present, and future legal dialogues. Its seamless transition into the digital era sets a remarkable precedent for the judiciary, ensuring efficient, real-time access to crucial information resources for the country's legal system.
