

Science labs can be found in schools, universities, research institutes, museums, or even at home, depending on the equipment and resources available.

Science labs also follow safety rules and procedures to prevent accidents, injuries, or contamination, such as wearing protective gear, labeling and storing chemicals, and disposing of waste properly.

